Marina and Ryan were married at the New York-New York Hotel in Las Vegas last month. Since they were planning a destination wedding from their home in Washington, it was important to find a Las Vegas wedding photographer they thought was creative and reliable. We were thrilled that they loved our work and asked us to be a part of their big day.

The wedding was an intimate celebration with about 60 of their favorite people. The reception took place in the Park Avenue Room at the New York-New York Hotel. It is a lovely and private area for small to medium sized gatherings and every detail was planned perfectly including the Vegas-themed place cards and a performance by Elvis. Marina and Ryan, thank you for sharing your day with us. We're glad you love the photos.

We had tons of fun working with the bride and groom and their bridal party \ and we created some beautiful images to show for it.

That is a really nice restaurant. I was a server for a local restaurant and happened to move around to other restaurants in Lower Manhattan and I am thinking of leaning more towards the restaurant business becus of the great atmosphere I felt while working there (: If you are looking for any hospitality Industry careers or restaurant careers may I suggest eet eest. @maamfaec7 I think that maybe you are being a bit judgmental. great food is great, and mcdonalds is well, mcdonalds. But people are allowed to like what they like and it is no harm to us. We do not need to eat mcdonalds just like not everyone needs to know who thomas keller is. It would be great if we could all eat out at amazing restaurants, but without lesser establishments, what would make these places so great. Im not trying to be argumentative, but maybe you are being a bit dramatic.

But the restaurants are completely amazing and the settings (for most anyways) offer a amazing xperience. Read more on New York Ny Hotel

June 9, 2010. Dear Brothers and Sisters, In my Apostolic Journey to Cyprus this past week, I walked in the footsteps of Saints Paul and Barnabas, who first brought the Gospel to that island, and visited the small but lively Catholic communities of the island. I thank the Authorities for their warm hospitality, and I

Some of the participants are directly involved in the ongoing crisis management. Among them Ludger Schuknecht, economist at the Ministry of Finance, who stood in for Finance Minister Wolfgang Schuble. His speech did not surprise \ the essence being: We are on the right track \ dealing with the current crisis as well as preventing and addressing future crises. He stressed the importance of avoiding a disorderly default and the need for a more rule-based governance \ the latter to be achieved through the European Stability Mechanism and reforms to the Stability and Growth Pact's preventive and corrective arms, including the new fiscal compact. His optimism also extended to the ongoing negotiations on private sector involvement (i.e. the voluntary taking of losses by private investors) in the handling of the Greek crisis which were likely to be concluded successfully (on Friday evening successful conclusion still was not in sight). The crisis countries themselves had to address the root causes of the crisis by reducing public debt and budget deficits and increasing their competitiveness. This required structural reforms including spending cuts and flexibilizing labour markets. With respect to the narrower conference topic, Schuknecht pointed to the decision of the European Council of 26 March 2011 to include collective action clauses in all new euro area government securities from July 2013. In my celebrations with the Maronite and Latin Catholic communities I witnessed their strong faith and traditions, and the vitality of their educational and charitable institutions. In Cyprus and throughout the Middle East, Christians are called to overcome divisions and to persevere in their witness to the Gospel in those lands. At Sunday Mass in Nicosia I consigned the working document for the forthcoming Special Assembly for the Middle East of the Synod of Bishops. Let us pray that the Synod will strengthen those ancient Christian communities in communion and hope, and help them to build a future of peace throughout the Middle East. I offer a warm welcome to the ecumenical study group from the School of Theology at Seton Hall University, and to the members of the International Leadership Programme for LaSallian Universities. My cordial greetings also go to the scholars and experts taking part in the international conference sponsored by the International Insolvency Institute. I greet the many student groups present, and I thank the choirs for their praise of God in song. Upon all the English-speaking visitors present at today's Audience, especially those from Ireland, the Philippines and the United States, I invoke Almighty God's blessings of joy and peace. think it's smart. The standard thought of Vegas is "Everything that happens in Vegas stays in Vegas". But this is saying that at New York, NY Hotel and Casino you will create cool stories and build relationships with ~~new strangers that you won't be able to hear to yourself~~

Granted it's not the most ground breaking print execution this year, but for a hotel it makes it feel inviting and fun.

Sometimes what you happen to photograph in Vegas, does not stay photographed in Vegas. \It pops up on the interweb. LOL Here is New York New York Hotel in the blue hour. I love this hotel'a perfect subject to photograph. That roller coaster has given me vertigo a few times. The sad effect of getting old. Have a great weekend.
